'ONE-ROUND" HOGAN'S MOTHER MAKES HIS TOGS AND PLANS HIS BATTLES

Sensational Ringster From Coast Says She Knows More About Game Than He Does, Although at First She Did Not Like Idea of Him Fighting.

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

TUST eighteen months ago One Round Hogan lost his job in Frisco. He was fired for licking the boss's son-in-law. At the time Hogan was serving the last year of his apprenticeship with old man O'Hare, the plumber, and was "pulling down" his twelve a week. But for the bad judgment he showed in trying to "muss up" a member of the boss's family, Hogan thight now be a first-class mechanic with a helper to tote around his kit of tools for him.

Evidently it wasn't to be. The fight with the boss's relative proved a turning point in Hogan's career. To-day he stands out, judging by his record, as one of the biggest sensations the prize ring ever saw. In little more than a year be has earned a small sized fortune with his fists, has built up a record of thirty-nine battles and twenty-one knockouts that rarely, if ever, has been equalled in the same short period, and now finds himself next door to the lightweight champlonship.

Hogan is twenty-three years old to-day. Unlike most ambitious young fighters, he started late, when he was matured, and in consequence has the

I don't want to say a word that would seem to imply that I undervalue the ability of present-day players or overestimate the elever-ness of these who have been and are no longer, but I don't mind telling you that. In my opinion, there have been mighty few nines superior to that which held the National Championship from 1880 to 1883, Unlike the majority of clubs in the League at that time, the Chicagos did not depend on the services of one first class pitcher, but had two, Corcoran and Goldsmith, both top notchers, playing them on alternate days. I had two catchers, also, both of them crackeriness, Flint, who ranked as the premier that the class of the corcorant with the cortex.
